The Road to Distinctive Education (School Policy)

Mr. Man Wing Cho, Vice principal and chairperson of Academic Department

Our school's encouraging results in public examinations in the past attributed to not only the teachers' and students' effort but also the school's proper planning including:

- 1. Promote "self-directed learning" by practising PPR (preparation, participation and reflection) in lessons to build up good learning habits among students.
- 2. Put a great emphasis on Life Planning. Through face-to-face discussion with students, Life Planning lessons and varied Careers Planning activities, we help students set goals at an early stage.
- 3. Enhance academic ambience and language environment on campus to let students' interests in all subjects flourish.
- 4. Introduce school-based curriculum such as Liberal Studies, Photography Zen, STEM, and Commerce in junior forms to lay a solid ground for the critical and analytical minds.
- 5. Give prominence to teachers' professional development by joining the "Quality School Improvement Project", scheduling co-planning periods, conducting action research, and exchanging with different schools to advance in both teaching and learning.
